Activity Report

Name of the Event: SHE-ROES

Date of Event: 8TH MARCH 2025

Venue: ONLINE MODE

Coordinating Society: Computer Science Students' Society

On 8th March 2025, the Computer Science Students' Society (CSSS) organized "SHE-ROES", an empowering event celebrating the strength, achievements, and influence of female role models. This event, held to commemorate Women's Day, provided a platform for students to create videos honoring inspiring women who have made a mark in their respective fields.

The event centered around the theme: "Women Who Inspire: A Tribute to Female Role Models", and invited participants to showcase their creativity in the form of video creation. The categories and focus of the event included:

Interviews – Participants captured insights from inspiring women around them, sharing the stories that shaped their success and influence.

Storytelling – The journey of powerful women, both from history and modern times, was narrated through engaging and heartfelt storytelling.

Creative Expression – This category encouraged participants to use poetry, visuals, and music to celebrate the impact of these women, allowing them to express their creativity in unique ways.

The event witnessed overwhelming participation from students, showcasing their creativity and dedication to bringing female role models into the spotlight.

Winners Announcement and Prize Distribution Ceremony

After the successful and enthusiastic participation, the winners were celebrated in a lively prize distribution ceremony. The winners were awarded certificates and trophies, presented by Dr. Manish Gupta, Dean of the Computer Science and Engineering Department. The ceremony was filled with excitement as each winner was applauded for their creativity and efforts.

1st Prize: Utkarsh Saxena (1st Year CSE)

2nd Prize: Gaurvi Bhardwaj (3rd Year CSE)

3rd Prize: Kavya Khatri (3rd Year CSE AI/ML)

Consolation Prizes

Consolation Prize: Poornima Shrishwal (3rd Year CSE)

The winners, along with all participants, were congratulated for their outstanding creativity and dedication. Society Convener Ms. Richa Saxena addressed the gathering, emphasizing the importance of celebrating and empowering women. She urged students to keep refining their skills and to use their voices for positive change.

The event concluded on a positive note, with special recognition given to the Student Coordinators for their efforts in ensuring the success of the event. Anjali Debnath (4th Year), Lavi Vashistha (3rd Year), and Mahima Verma (2nd Year) played an integral role in the smooth execution of the event, along with support from Faculty Coordinators Ms. Richa Saxena, Ms. Sakshi Singh, Mr. Rohit Kr. Singh, and Mr. Prabal Bhatnagar.

Overall, SHE-ROES was an inspiring and impactful event, highlighting the incredible women who continue to inspire generations and empowering students to share their voices through the power of digital storytelling.
